SMU Transfers $100,000 From Athletics to Press Fund

DALLAS, Oct. 24.—(P)—The Athletic Department of Southern Methodist University Wednesday took $100,000 from its bulging treasury and gave it to the University Press. This is believed to be the first such gift in college history.

Football at SMU has been a going institution at the gate for some years with the team drawing around a half-million fans each season. The University Press cannot pay expenses since it publishes text books and other material that has a very select clientele. This is considered necessary, however, in the furtherance of the educational program.

So Matty Bell, director of athletics, today presented a gift from the athletic fund to Allen Maxwell, director of the Southern Methodist University Press.

Each year for 10 years the athletic fund will pay $10,000 to the University Press. This money will be divided between the revolving fund, which is used to publish meritorious manuscripts, and an endowment fund, the income from which will be placed in the revolving fund.

Gerald Mann, a former Southern Methodist University football star now a member of the university's executive committee, said that the professors and not the football team built a university and "you can't get these men unless you give them the privilege of expressing themselves."

UT Spirit Boils For Rice Game

By AL WARD

A chain-reaction rally, gathering momentum as it went, curled through the University area Wednesday night, stopped occasionally to hiss yells at the larger dormitories, then snaked up to Hill Hall and shook its fifty-odd spirited rattles.

Though the walls didn't tumble, the athlete residents, clustered around windows and doors in appreciation. Small as it was, the demonstration was the earliest initiation of spirit shown for any of this year's home football games.

Led by cheerleaders, the rally started with five cars and terminated at Hill Hall with more than fifteen. The turnout was encouraging enough for the Public Relations Committee which is spearheading the rallies, to schedule another for 8 o'clock Thursday night. Participants are requested to gather at "St. Peter's Gate" in the tri-dorm area. Newton Steele, Relations Committee representative, said this one will be "bigger and louder" and urged students to bring their noise-makers and friends. Cars are expected to assemble at the starting gate a little before eight.

Interest mounted on Forty Acres over the coming Rice-Texas battle. More than 7,000 students had drawn seats when the Gregory Gymnasium ticket booths closed Wednesday afternoon. Intercollegiate Athletics business manager Ed Olle announced that Wednesday's drawing surpassed Monday's and Tuesday's combined total.

The collapsible bleachers in the south end of Memorial Stadium are being raised to insure latecomers the opportunity of purchasing tickets at the gates and also to raise the seating capacity to 65,000. Officials are expecting a 50,000 plus crowd for the Steers' first home Conference start.

Saturday's tilt is expected to give the contest of longhorn title chances. It will serve as a barometer reading for the storm-producing capacity of Ed Price's 1951 team before they journey further into turbulent Conference race. Most observers are predicting rather gusty things of the Steers this week and thus giving the Houston visitors the pre-game

For lovers of the past, the Quartermaster Club will show films of the Arkansas game at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the Main Lounge of the Texas Union. Bud Longmire, Quartermaster, who scouted the Razorbacks, will narrate the film.

'US Shouldn't Intervene In Latin American Affairs'

By BRUCE JONES and ANNE CHAMBERS

"Our honeymoon with Latin America is over," said Dr. Lewis Hanke, director of the Institute of Latin American Studies at the University, to the Great Issues course meeting last night.

"No longer can the United States afford to concentrate on developing closer relations with the Latin American countries. The power and interest of the US is now, of necessity, spread out all over the world."

Speaking before a capacity crowd at the University Christian Church, he used as an example the foreign aid bill recently passed by Congress.

"Of the seven and a half billion dollars voted to help non-communist countries, only one percent went to Latin America."

Dr. Hanke, who was director of the Hispanic division of the Library of Congress for eleven years, believes that although Latin America is rarely seen in our headlines today, we still consider it important to us for four reasons:

1. Latin America is traditionally a defense area for the US and despite our expansion, it remains the core of our defense.
2. Communism can easily upset that core of defense.
3. Latin America is an important source of raw materials.
4. There is a sentimental, philosophical factor in our ties with Latin America.

In commenting on the defensive importance of Latin America, Dr. Hanke said, "The Latin American nations now believe they have a collective responsibility for security."

One of the principal problems he enumerated is what to do with governments, particularly dictatorships, which we don't like.

"No matter how good the cause and even if it means retaining dictators, we must not intervene in the internal politics of Latin America."

He warned the United States against intervening in the case of the Argentine newspaper, La Prensa, as an example, saying that every Latin American nation would be down on us immediately. "Because we are a wealthy neighbor, it is easy to arouse anti-US feeling."

This was proved only recently by the August 22 demonstration in Buenos Aires for Peron where signs declared the US to be "the greatest criminal nation in the world."

Another problem that faces us is the difference between the economy of the US and Latin America, he said.

"The Latin American countries want to protect their own infant industries and by doing so their laws are running counter to our economic interests there."

"We here in Texas, especially, should be interested in studying the culture and background of other Hemisphere nations," he concluded. "If we can develop scholars in University centers, we can have well-informed citizens who won't make blind judgments."

Wallace Hearing Is Set for Today

An examining trial has been set for Malcolm E. (Mac) Wallace, charged with the pistol-slashing of Douglas Kinser, for 10 a.m. Thursday in Justice of the Peace Travis Blakeslee's Court.

Wallace, 30-year-old former president of the student body, was arrested Monday shortly after the 33-year-old Kinser, a sophomore, had been shot to death in the clubhouse of the golf course he operated.

In a Habeas Corpus action Tuesday afternoon Judge Charles O. Betts of the 98th District Court ordered Wallace released since no charges had been filed at that time.

Leaving the court room, Wallace was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Alfred Prinz on a warrant issued by Blakeslee and signed by City Detective T. S. (Pete) Weaver.

Since that time he has been held in the county jail under a $30,000 bond, the highest remembered by local officials.

Wallace has maintained silence in the face of questioning by officers, reporters, and a state psychiatrist since his arrest. Folk Shelton, of Austin, was retained as his lawyer Wednesday.

At the examining trial Thursday Wallace's father will likely attempt to have the large bond lowered.

Wednesday, Wallace refused to accompany District Attorney Bob Long to the Department of Public Safety for identification tests. Sheriff Earnest Best, who kept Long from employing a straight-jacket, was accused by Long as "obstructing justice."

Best answered the charge by saying, "I want to cooperate with the district attorney, but I want to do right by anyone in my custody."

Best said that witnesses were free to see Wallace at the jail if Long chooses. But he indicated that he was afraid something might happen to Wallace on the way to or from the Department of Public Safety. He said he would then be to blame, and not Long.

Late Wednesday Austin police still hadn't found the gun allegedly used in the killing, but were continuing search. Also they had been unable to find a motive for the killing.

AP Poll Has 2 SWC Men 'Tops'

NEW YORK, Oct. 24—(AP)—downed the Texas quarterback, The Southwest Conference, which has been hitting the football headlines regularly this season, came up Wednesday with both the defensive and offensive linemen of the week in Bob Griffin, Arkansas center, and Bill Howton, Rice end.

Although each played on both offense and defense nearly the whole game, the voting in this third Associated Press poll of the season ranked Griffin tops defensively for his superb play against Texas. Howton's feat of catching three touchdown passes against SMU earned his offensive laurels.

The honor was particularly gratifying to Griffin, a 230-pound senior from Frederick, Okla. Last year he was dismissed from the squad in midseason for cutting classes. He was reinstated this season by Coach Otis Douglas.

Against Texas, Griffin played nearly 60 minutes and his defensive work was a big factor in holding Texas to only four first downs. He was so agile in smashing through the Texas forward wall that on three occasions he

Red Mayes Breaks Hand in Practice

Texas' offensive strength received a heavy setback Wednesday when Carl "Red" Mayes, a hard-running left halfback, broke his right hand in a scrimmage with the freshmen.

Coach Ed Price said Wednesday afternoon that Mayes would probably be lost to the team for at least three weeks. Mayes was a standout in the Longhorns' victory over Oklahoma and was expected to add punch to the Steer attack.

While the offense scrimmaged against the freshmen, Coach Price ran his defensive team against the ineligibles, using Rice's plays off the straight T formation. Price shifted speedy Don Barton and Gib Dawson, starting halfbacks, to defensive halfback positions to help halt Rice's Dan Drake to Bill Howton passing attack.

They teams with Bobby Dillon, ace safetyman, to give Texas a fast secondary to cope with Rice passing. Despite the new strategy, a simulated Rice offense still clicked for consistent gains.

Young Owls Loom As Explosive Foe

By TOMMY THOMPSON
Texas Sports Staff

A giant killer and a killed giant meet Saturday when the sizzling Rice Owls, mysterious conquerors of SMU, mix with Texas, victims of a high-flyin' bunch from Arkansas.

In throttling Fred Benner's magic heaves, the Owls shocked everyone from Peruna to Grantland Rice when they controlled the ball and the score, 28-7, in one of the day's crop of upsets.

The coming affair wasn't doped to be much of a game, but since US (Upset Saturday) occurred, any game played between Conference members spells EXPLOSION in capitals.

The Rice fuse has been slow in igniting. Disappointing in their opener against Clemson, the Owls bounced back to almost down LSU, 7-6.

Navy was set back the next week end, 21-14, and then came the horrendous thud of SMU. Texas' ball bounced merrily along until US; when it took a governor's proclamation and twenty-odd glowing hot Hogs to beat them, 16-14.

The men with the cards and points are showing seven cautious ones in Texas' direction, and the men are scared to do that.

Paced by a potential all-American in the form of Left End Bill Howton, the potent feathered flock boasts a squad of 46 sophomores, 14 juniors, and 11 seniors, trouble on any man's gridiron. Since Rice operates from an almost obsolete standard "T," the first problem that Head Coach Jess Neely faced this fall was finding a replacement for former star ball-handler, Vernon Glass. He found the lad in-rangy 6-2, 190-pound, Leroy Fenestemaker.

Dan Drake, rising junior from Fort Worth is also a red-hot candidate for the starting quarterback position. The Texas game, annually the "big one" for the Owls, looms as a battle between tough forward walls. Texas's line, both offensively and defensively, has won more than one ball game, and Rice's rugged sophomore line is improving with every outing.

Led by hard-charging Glenn Walls, only senior on the line, and Bill Crockett at tackle, the Owls will field Gene Little and Hans Wagner at guards with Jack Day at the pivot position.

With Howton at left end and Sonny McCurry, 6-4, 180 pounder at the right end post, the Owls can start a well balanced offensive line. On defense they can play standouts Richard Chapman, John Hudson, Max Schuebel, and W. C. Treadway. Don Rhoden and Leo Rucka have also sparked at the linebacking slot. Howton is the Conference's second leading scorer. He trails Texas' Gib Dawson with 30 points on five touchdowns, all passes caught from the arm of Dan Drake.

Other fleet Rice backs are Billy Daniels and Ted Riggs at halfback, and Kosse Johnson at fullback. Riggs, Drake, and Dick Haddox have not donned pads as yet this week, but are expected to play in the scramble. In the past two years, the eleven have split. Rice eked out a thrilling 17-15 win in 1949 at Austin, and the Steers ruined the Owls' homecoming last fall, 35-7.

Maroons Prime Defense for Ray

Defense is the top card in the Austin High deck this week as the Maroon practice sessions hit high gear in preparation for their crucial tussle Friday with Ray High School of Corpus Christi.

Speed, savvy, and enthusiasm mark the Ray High crew which uses nine offensive formations. Coach Bill Stages has his Texans line up in a standard T, then shift into a variety of other formations. Finding a defense for the multitude of attacks is no easy assignment.

Cogs in the Ray High offensive machinery are Sonny Crisp and Fred Morgan who man the backfield positions. Crisp, one of the best triple threats in the state, runs, kicks, and passes right along with the cream of the Texas schoolboy crop.

In their five previous games, the Texans have run up 180 points. Although the sparkling offensive outfit basks in all of the glory, the defensive crew has yielded only three touchdowns, two of those to rugged Thomas Jefferson.

The contest already is a sellout and 300 seats erected about the field were expected to be sold long before gametime.

Paging All Sports

By HOWARD PAGE
Texas Sports Staff

When Blair Cherry installed the straight T-formation here in 1947, the former Longhorn head coach wasn't worried about a quarterback as Coach Ed Price is today since Bobby Layne was still available.

Instead, Cherry was looking for a consistent, hard-running and blocking fullback that could stand the pace in the quick-starting formation. And Cherry thought he had found just the right solution to that problem in Raymond Jones, a tough 195-pounder who had starred the season before in D. X. Bible's single-wing formation.

Competition was strong at the fullback slot as it is today with Jones just a shade ahead of Tom Landry, now a defensive starter with the professional New York Yankees. Jones received the starting nod, but injuries and the consistent play of Landry benched the former Austin High athlete in the Longhorns' third game of the season. Landry was the leading ball carrier that season and was named on several All-Southwest selections.

Landry was a junior and Cherry's fullback problems for the 1948 season seemed to be solved with the return of the Mission product. But misfortune hit Landry early in '48 when the fullback suffered a broken hand which temporarily forced him to the sidelines.

However, another promising junior—Ray Borneman—was on hand and the Houston lad battled his way into the starting position in the New Mexico game. Borneman proved his worth by being named to the All-Conference team.

Then came the Orange Bowl game with Georgia, and the fullback cycle began to roll. Borneman went out early in the game with a twisted knee, but Landry responded with his best game of the season to spark the Steers past the favored Bulldogs.

Borneman's knee was the big question mark in 1949 as Cherry's third season as head coach rolled around. As fate would have it, Borneman suffered an injury to his trick knee early in the campaign and once again—another promising junior—was ready to take over.

Lewis Levine, 190-pound junior who had worked his way up without benefit of a scholarship, got the job with Borneman out most of the time. Levine lacked the speed of previous fullbacks, but his drive and determination balanced the situation.

Then came the 1950 season when the Steers favored for the championship, largely on the return of an experienced line. Levine was back for his senior season, showing improved running, but Texas had a junior named Byron Townsend that was ready and willing for action.

Townsend received the call at

Soccer Due Date Set for Nov. 7

By JEFF HANCOCK
Texas Intramural Co-ordinator

"Use your toe, your heel, your chest, or whatever 'anatomy' you think best, but first and foremost use your head and get your entries in for soccer."

That's what the green information sheet circulated by the Men's Intramural office says, and it's sage advice because the deadline for entering in the rough and rugged kicking game is Wednesday, November 7.

Competition will be conducted on a double elimination basis except in the championship series which will be straight elimination. Games will be scheduled for 5, 7, and 8 o'clock. Organizations entering in soccer will receive 50 entry points if they play all their scheduled games. Contest winners will receive 25 points while the losers will get fifteen.

Organizations that have been eliminated from touch football are urged by the Intramural office to start practicing for soccer as soon as possible. Practice equipment may be checked out in Gregory Gym.

Only two touch football games were played in intramurals Wednesday night. Sigma Nu beat Acacia, 7-0, and Delta Kappa Epsilon beat Phi Delta Theta, 39-0. Both games were class B affairs. Sigma Nu scored their single touchdown on a pass from C. P. Dishroon to C. B. Brooks. Dishroon passed to Melo Miteff for the extra point.

The Dukes rode the good right arm of Clifford Goldsmith to their 39-13 victory over Phi Delta Theta. Goldsmith passed for all six DKE scores. Bill Clark paced the Phi Delta Theta scoring efforts by tossing two touchdown passes.

MacPhail Wants 6 Leagues
WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP)—The long Congressional hearings on baseball wound up Wednesday with Larry MacPhail, former New York Yankee president, calling for six major leagues. MacPhail didn't explain how or where his six major leagues would be set up.

Yearling-Owlet Game Friday

The Texas Yearlings and the Rice Owlets will be trying to get in the "winning" habit Friday afternoon when they meet at 2 p.m. on Memorial Stadium turf.

Both the Yearlings and the Owlets lost the last time out. The Texas freshmen lost their opener a week ago, 25-7, to the Baylor freshmen in Waco.

Rice is not a complete stranger to victory, having beat the TCU freshmen in their opener, 21-13. Del Mar Junior College beat Rice in their second encounter, 46-13, and the Owlets lost to the SMU Colts last week, 26-6.

If incentive and the advantage of playing at home has anything to do with it, and Arkansas proved conclusively last Saturday that it has, then the Yearlings should take the Owlets. Rice won last year's game in Houston, 20-16.

The Yearling defense was not strong in last Friday's game at Waco and Coach Grover (Ox) Emerson has been driving his defensive team hard in practice all week. Defensive line starters will be Charles Schreiner and Malcolm Kitchens at ends, Dick Hopping and Lonnie Weir at tackles, and Kenneth Harlow at guard. The 240-pound Harlow was outstanding on defense against Baylor.

George Newman, Jack Taylor, and Raborn Matthews will be the starting linebackers; Glen Dyer will start at defensive left half, Oliver Bradshaw or Ed Kelly at defensive right half, and Harry Burke at safety.

Offensive starters will be Howard Moon and Kitchens at ends, Buck Lansford and Lawrence Kalmus at tackles, Jimmy Samuelson and Don Miller at guards, and Leighton Younger at center. Ferdy Berket will start at quarterback.

UT Harriers Run Texas A&M Fri.

By DICK WILLIAMS
Texas Sports Staff

Holders of a 21-51 triumph in their last meet, the Longhorn cross-country team has its biggest hurdle of the season Friday afternoon—an encounter with the Texas A&M harriers in the first clash of the year between the Southwest Conference foes.

The vastly improved Longhorns toppled North Texas State and Howard Payne of Brownwood in their second meet after finishing third behind Oklahoma A&M and the Texas Aggies at College Station in their initial outing.

Paced by Captain C. A. Rundell, the Steer crew consists of Pat Odell, Andy Killam, Chester Bradley, and Otis Budd. Rounding out Coach Frogge Lovvorn's seven-man squad is Lincoln Jeanes and Early Whitesides.

Competition for the offensive left halfback post is very keen. In addition to Simcik and Graham, Harry Burke and Sonny Jones are vying for the position.

Coach Lovvorn said that he expected his team to do even better than they did last year when they followed Arkansas and Texas A&M in the Southwest Conference meet.

Last year the Razorbacks upset the heavily-favored Aggies, SWC victors in the two previous years, at College Station. The Porkers have the Southwest Conference meet scheduled in the Ozark hills this year, and the other teams have to travel to Fayetteville for the opening of conference competition Oct. 19.

Chester Bradley and Pat Odell have registered the fastest times for the mile—4 minutes 49 seconds.

The veteran captain of the Longhorn squad, C. A. Rundell, finished third in the Southwest Conference meet last year.

After facing Texas A&M in Austin Saturday, the Steers tangle with Arkansas and the Aggies in Fayetteville Nov. 3.

Texas Cross-Country Schedule
Oct. 26—Texas A&M at Austin
Nov. 3—Arkansas and Texas A&M at Fayetteville

Nov. 6—Abilene Christian College and Howard Payne at Austin
Nov. 9—North Texas State and Texas A&M at College Station
Nov. 14—Victoria Junior College at Austin

Nov. 19—Southwest Conference Meet at Fayetteville.

Applications Due Today For Mexican Scholarships

Thursday is the deadline for applications made by United States students for grants to study in Mexico, Mrs. Viola Garza of the International Advisory Office said Tuesday.

Nineteen grants are available for the academic year beginning in February, 1952. Twelve of the scholarships are at graduate level, and seven will go to undergraduate students.

Physical anthropology, archaeology, ethnology, Mexican history, architecture, and philosophy and letters are the fields in which awards are available at undergraduate level.

In addition to the above fields, graduate awards include museography, painting, biological sciences, pediatrics, tropical medicine, and cardiology. There are, however, no awards for architecture or philosophy and letters at the graduate level.

These scholarships are offered by the Mexican government through the Mexican-United States Commission on Cultural Cooperation. Additional information is available at the International Advisory Office, B. Hall 21.

A new chromium plating process which does not require the use of nickel has been developed under the guidance of Dr. Norman Hackerman, professor of chemistry and director of the Corrosion Research Laboratory here.

Dr. Hackerman described the new laboratory technique at a recent meeting of the Electrochemical Society of America in Detroit. Tylen Jensen and Earl S. Snively, graduate students, aided in development of the process.

The new process makes it possible to plate chromium directly on steel.

Sigma Pi Sigma, honorary physics society, will meet Thursday at 4 p.m. in Physics Building 201. Dr. L. O. Morgan, assistant professor of chemistry, who is doing research in radio chemistry, will speak on "Magic Numbers in Nuclear Structures."

The second meeting this year of the University Young Republican Club will be held Thursday night in Sutton Hall 101 at 7:30 p.m.

New officers will be elected and standing committees appointed. After the election the regional and state college directors will address the group.

The first man in history to succeed in growing brain cells from human tissue will receive the 1951 Texas Award of A. Harris and Company. He is Dr. Charles M. Pomerat, professor of cytology at the University School of Medicine at Galveston.

The award, which carries with it a $1,000 grant, was established last year and is not limited to any particular field in art or science. Last year it was awarded to Katherine Anne Porter and J. Frank Dobie for their work in the field of literature.

This award will be presented to Dr. Pomerat at a banquet in the Adolphus Hotel in Dallas Friday, October 26.

Dr. Pomerat has done extensive work with cells. He has been granted $27,000 in research from the American Cancer Society.

Charley G. Kidder, senior journalism major, has been appointed executive secretary of the Latin American GI Forum of Texas. The organization is made up of 190 Texas forums and has a membership of more than 15,000.

Ed Idar Jr., University graduate, was elected state chairman of the organization at its convention in August.

Poise Formula Offered Co-eds In Handbook

If you're a "Droopy Lou" and want to become "Happy Sal," the formula is to be found in the new student handbook prepared by the Women's Physical Training Department.

The 26-page, free handbook, which is distributed to the new P. T. students, is brim full of tips on how to become a poised gal.

Spiced with illustrations by Charles Head, the book presents good posture, considered, in terms of health, efficiency, and appearance as the first prerequisite for poise.

Tests for good posture, illustrated exercises for every figure fault, and plain language explanations and corrections for health problems make the book educational, useful, and entertaining. Instructions on walking, sitting, lifting, reaching, carrying books or heavy objects, and relaxing are given.

The handbook was prepared by Frances H. Crawford, Marilyn Crawford, Doris Meyer, Sheila O'Garra, Mary Pavlich, Anne Pittman, Gloria Ragus, and Jane Schoonmaker. Consultants were Kathryn McCormick, M. D., Health Service; Janet Fitzgerald, M. A., Home Economics Department; and Jessie Helen Haag, Ed. D., Physical and Health Education.

Co-ed Assembly To Hear Flinn In Union Today

Miss Helen Flinn, social director of the University residence halls for women, will be principal speaker. She will discuss the responsibility of Co-Ed Assembly members and student leaders to draw into participation persons not active in any organization.

Jeannette Welhausen, president, will present in detail the results of the survey conducted by the Assembly last spring on participation in extra-curricular activities. This survey shows where the girls participating in the least and most activities live; which class holds more offices in the clubs, and what percentages of students are active in one, two, three, or more activities.

The Assembly hopes to be able to draw more of the non-active students into activities, and will work in this area.

The Assembly also works with the Dean of Women in keeping activity sheets of all women students up to date. Each fall an Activities Handbook, listing the organizations on the campus, their purpose, meeting time, and presidents, is published.

Additional copies of these books are available at the Dean of Women's Office.

Surprised, too, were registrar's office personnel when the innocent young thing stopped in to pick up her "prize."

'Man's World' of Engineering Stormed by Air-age Co-eds

By A. J. FISHER
Proof that the modern co-ed is undaunted by the dangers and complexities of the air age can be found in the Department of Aeronautical Engineering at the University.

Betty Jeanne Reynolds and Shirley Holmgren are majoring in aeronautical engineering, a field into which only six other University girls have ventured in the last six years.

"I solved the day after my sixteenth birthday, much to my mother's horror," said Betty Jeanne, a junior from Pampa.

Her parents told Betty Jeanne that she could learn to fly if she earned the money herself. Since she was attending high school during the day, this seemed a safe requirement. But extra money from baby-sitting paid for lessons and Betty Jeanne is now only five air hours short of getting her pilot's license.

She has had nine hours experience in gliders and belongs to the Texas Soaring Society.

Betty Jeanne also works in the meteorology lab charting weather maps and filing teletype data. She hopes to do graduate work in that field.

Betty Jeanne earned the nickname "Sunshine" when she made a mistake by reporting sunny weather for the afternoon of an engineers picnic. After it rained on the picnicers, a professor and fellow engineering student marched her to the front of a classroom and serenaded her with three verses of "Sunshine."

The other co-ed in aeronautical engineering, Shirley Holmgren, senior from Bryan, comes from a long line of mathematicians. Both her brother and uncle are engineers and her grandfather is a cabinet-maker and designer.

Callist to Play for Club
Merle Clayton, University graduate music student, will give a program of cello music at the Austin Women's Club Thursday at 11:15. Clayton is preparing to present a concert for his master of music degree soon. The program Thursday will precede the club's luncheon at 12:30.

"My grandfather wanted me to study architecture," Shirley said, "but I didn't want to be an architect. I didn't want to be a school teacher, either, so it boiled down to aeronautical engineering."

Shirley spent two years in Europe, where she attended the University of Geneva. Her father is food and agricultural director of the Marshall Plan.

Besides being president of Delta Gamma sorority, Shirley is a member of Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman women's honorary society, and Alpha Alpha Gamma, honor society for women architects and allied arts. She also has the woman's badge of Tau Beta Pi, men's honorary engineering fraternity.

Robinson Tried Out Organ And Took It Up As Career

Dr. Paul S. Robinson, new instructor of organ at the University, has interests ranging from music and math to linoleum prints. The son of a Pennsylvania village blacksmith, Dr. Robinson became interested in music through "trying out" musical instruments in churches and in friends' homes. "Then my father bought me a piano, and I started practicing," he says.

A member of the American Guild of Organists, he received his BA at Westminster College, New Wilmington, Pa. He was awarded a four-year scholarship to the Curtis Institute of Music, and he holds master's and doctor's degrees in sacred music from the School of Sacred Music, Union Theological Seminary, N.Y.

Dr. Robinson says that he does not pretend to know every subtlety of the organ. "A rather difficult instrument to get inside of, the organ has the sustaining quality of an orchestra," he says. Sitting on an organ bench in his practice room, Dr. Robinson showed how an organ note does not diminish while a key is held down.

A tall, broad-shouldered man, who majored in math and French, he says the inside of an organ is a mystery to most people. "Usually they just go to church and see a few pipes," he says.

He has found that many organists are mathematical. "This is understandable when you realize that there are many technicalities connected with playing the organ," he says.

He believes there are two elements in learning to play. One must feel and enjoy the music, and must learn to control the mechanics of performing. The goal of the teacher is to help the student overcome the technical difficulties of playing, he says.

The organ has not always been connected with the church, he said. The ancient Greeks and Romans used it as accompaniment for barbaric arena battles. For this reason it was not used in the church for many centuries.

Dr. Robinson feels that students should work things out for themselves. However, he also feels that one should pass on to others what he learns. He does not think that a teacher should force his likes or dislikes upon students, but rather that he show them what he has found in music, and let them decide their own preferences.

NY Times Forum To Be Recorded at UT

Radio House's production of the New York Times Youth Forum, a coast-to-coast network program, Monday at 8 p.m. in the Recital Hall, has been announced by Thomas D. Rishworth, director of Radio House and producer.

The recording will be broadcast later in the week by more than 400 stations of the Liberty Broadcasting System. The New York Times Station, WQXR, will have a repeat broadcast in New York City.

Miss Dorothy Gordon, who has been the moderator for the Youth Forum since it first went on the air five years ago, will be in Austin to lead this discussion.

Dr. Lewis U. Hanke, recently appointed director of the Institute of Latin-American Studies at the University, is to be a special guest on the panel.

Six high school students from Austin and Dr. Hanke will compose the panel.

Don Hammil, Harold Whited, Cynthia Heath, and Carol McIntosh will represent Austin High School. Serving as alternates for them are Theodore Becker and Joan Fleming. Richard Albright of St. Edward's High School and Robert Hart of St. Steven's Episcopal School will also appear on the panel.

The Forum has won many national awards as one of the outstanding radio broadcasts for young people of high school age, Mr. Rishworth said.

Former organist and accompanist at Duke University, Durham, N.C., and organist-director of the Centenary Methodist Church, Winston-Salem, N.C., he plans to return to Winston-Salem to play "The Messiah" in December of this year in response to an invitation.

Dr. Robinson served in the army during World War II as a chaplain's assistant.

Among special guests on the Youth Forum have been Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt; Warren Austin; Gen. Carlos P. Romulo; W. Averell Harriman; Dr. Ralph Bunche; Nelson Rockefeller; John Mason Brown; and Sir Gladwyn Jebb.

Admission to the October 29 recording is primarily by invitation. Mr. Rishworth said. However, limited number of seats will be available to the public, he added, and tickets for these may be obtained from the Music Hall box office Thursday afternoon.

3 Plays Scheduled In Drama Festival

Season tickets for the Civic Drama Festival, sponsored by the Austin Exchange Club, are on sale at the J. R. Reed Music Company, A. C. Baldwin and Sons, and the University Co-Op. The tickets are $5 plus tax. Proceeds go to worthy causes selected by the club.

The three plays to be given by the Civic Drama Guild of New York will be "Heaven Can Wait" on December 18, "Darkness at Noon" on February 19, and "Voice of the Turtle" on March 20.

"Heaven Can Wait," better known under the movie title of "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," is the story of a heavenly messenger who delivers the wrong person to Heaven and tries to rationalize with his victim.

"Darkness at Noon" stars Herbert Voland, who appeared here last year as Harry Brock in "Born Yesterday." It is the story of the influence of communism on a creative citizen. Much of the action takes place in a Soviet prison.

Phyllis Manning and Wendell Mayes will star in "The Voice of the Turtle," which has been a success as both a play and a movie. It is a romantic comedy of a soldier on a three-day pass and a stage-struck young girl in New York.

Sets were made by Eugene Dunkel, designer for the Metropolitan Opera Company and New York's Radio City Music Hall.

Government May Give Cars to Disabled Vets

Veterans of World War II or of the Korean War who lost a leg or arm, or who are partially or totally blinded, would receive government benefits up to $1,600 on the price of an automobile under a bill which the Senate passed Friday over President Truman's veto. The bill now goes to the House.

In his veto message, President Truman said he would gladly approve legislation in which only veterans who have lost use of one or both legs at or above the ankle would receive the aid.

'Bearers' Trip, Regain Feet In Blazing 'Flapper' Comedy

By KENNETH GOMPERTZ

Flapping not far behind was Nevlynn Bobo as Mrs. Ritter, whose dizziness is the bane of her husband's existence. As the lead lady for Mrs. "P," she creates a furor not only in her house but also on the stage.

The ACT's international member of the troupe, Maxine Wiles, has created a secondary role as a cockney maid with a great deal of spirit and a mentionable sense of comic timing.

James Westbrooke, as a stale "ham" whose nose is stuck up too far to smell his own shortcomings, Carl Rongo, as the disgruntled Mr. Ritter, and Billie Jeanne Kirschner, as a respiring young actress, filled in worthy supporting roles.

A show within a show during the second act takes the audience backstage where more happens than could ever take place "out front." Again minor technical difficulties and acting jitters slowed down a necessary fast pace for success and deprived the audience of the best laughs.

"The Torchbearers" gives a comedian a chance to let himself go and to enjoy himself in the humor that Mr. Kelly has written. There can hardly be any restraining it for not only are there line gags but there is also the overdrawn situation which is designed for the best in comedy.

With three shows ahead of them, the ACTors cannot help but give a better and more satisfactory show. For the audiences to come there is a production that should tickle the wit of even the most crusty and taustic audience.

"Juno and the Paycock," which will be presented November 7-17 in X Hall by the Department of Drama, reflects the background of Sean O'Casey, one of the foremost Irish dramatists. Dr. Francis Hodge will direct the play.

Sean O'Casey was born in the Dublin slums around 1880. His father was a scholar who was held in admiration and awe by his Gaelic neighbors. His formal education ended when he was 14, and he became a laborer.

O'Casey first began his literary career writing political articles dealing with the cause of the Irish Free State. At the age of 40, he wrote his first play, which was successful immediately.

In 1923 he became associated with the Abbey Players when his first play, "Shadow of a Gunman," was produced there. Despite the success of his plays O'Casey never changed his status as a laborer and always came to performances wearing a sweater and a cap. The cap remained on his head during the entire performance. In 1926, "The Plough and the Star," a play concerning the Easter Insurrection of 1916, caused a riot when it was performed. In writing "The Silver Tassie," O'Casey changed his style from stark realism, such as you find in "Juno and the Paycock," to fantasy and a world of symbolism. After the rejection of "The Silver Tassie" by Yeats and Lady Gregory, one-time supporters of his, O'Casey never wrote for the Abbey Players again.

Besides his plays, O'Casey has written several autobiographical sketches dealing with different phases of his life. Among these are "I Knock On the Door" and "Drums Under the Window." Of his plays, "Juno and the Paycock" is considered to be his most forceful play and his masterpiece.

3 Students Win Design Contest

Gerald Branda, Ellis Swanson, and James Wash Jr. have been awarded $360 in prizes for the best three entries from the University in a state-wide architectural designing contest.

The competition, sponsored by the Texas Society of Architects, is for the best design in use of expanded shale aggregate lightweight construction concrete in a specified type of building. The University's entries, along with designs from other Texas schools, will be judged at the TSA convention in San Antonio Thursday and Friday.

Branda's prize was $180, Swanson's $120, and Wash's $60.

Lenell Green, as Mrs. Pamplini, the Torchbearers director, and Mary Brown, as the proper who does everything except prompt, create a center to a whirlpool of "inspired thespians." Fitting their characters as well as they did their abbreviated flapper outfits, they stole the show with their flittings, flutterings, short-sightedness, and theatrical airs of roles—Torchbearers numbers one and two.

"Supreme Interpreter"

Artur Rubenstein, one of the world's contemporary piano greats, will appear here January 13 under the sponsorship of the Cultural Entertainment Committee.

Critics of half a dozen nations have proclaimed Rubenstein as the supreme piano interpreter. He has traveled more than a million miles on concert tours. During the two World Wars, he was known as an unofficial ambassador for Poland.

Like many musicians, Rubenstein was a child prodigy. He took his first piano lesson at the age of three, and within the next three years had given two public performances.

When he was 8, Rubenstein began to study at Warsaw, but soon exhausted the teaching ability of his instructor. His sister took him to Berlin to perform for Joseph Joachim, the violinist, who sent him to Heinrich Barth for lessons in piano technique and to Max Bruch for instruction in theory, harmony, and composition. He spent three months studying with Paderewski, the great Polish pianist.

His first American debut was at Philadelphia in 1906. He was acclaimed for his technique, but criticized for his lack of feeling, then undeveloped. A whirlwind tour of 75 concerts in three months acquainted Rubenstein with America. Then he returned to Europe in semi-retirement.

In 1910 the restless Rubenstein began to tour the world again as a mature artist.

Rubenstein gave a number of concerts in Carnegie Hall, Town Hall, and Lewisohn Stadium. Irving Kolodin of the New York Sun said, "He played Bach seriously, Beethoven intelligently, and Brahms earnestly."

The Polish pianist has made numerous recordings, including solos and concertos with the London Symphony Orchestra, and albums of the music of Chopin, Brahms, Franck, Bach, Tchaikovsky, and of Villa-Lobos, whose music he made popular.

In addition to being recognized as a fine interpreter of Brahms and Chopin, Rubenstein has been acclaimed by modern composers for his interpretation of their own works. Stravinsky, Prokofiev, Szymanowski, Tansman, Milhaud, Poulenc, Ponce, Villa-Lobos, and John Alden Carpenter have written music in his honor.

He has been described as loquacious, "small, dapper, pink-cheeked man," a connoisseur of wine, cigars, and fashion. Although he had a wife, Aniela Myrskari, and his wife, Aniela Myrskari, are now living in California, they have a home in Paris which was vacated shortly before the Nazi occupation of France. There he had a valuable library of rare musical objects and first editions, many art treasures, and toys, which he had collected during his trips around the world.

The concert is expected to be held in Gregory Gym. It will be included in the Cultural Entertainment Committee's regular series.
